CLASS SONG

Our Royal class now lays their books aside
We look ahead to future broad and wide.
Hope, work, and wait—these all will show us how
To reach success
The World's our Kingdom now.

Now is the hour when we must say goodbye.
Soon we'll be parting
Where our pathways lie.
We'll cherish still our fondest mem'ries sweet.
Always we'll hope
Some day again to meet.

Class History

It was a bright day in September of 1944 when our court of thirty-five princes and princesses began a journey to the land of Education. With the name of Freshman in the first mile of our journey, we selected as leaders: Margie Poe, President; John Reynolds Harris, Vice-President; Delores Gaines, Secretary and Treasurer. For most of us this was an eventful and successful mile; however, many began to make excuses: The first said, "I am poor in health; therefore, I can go no further". Another said, "I must needs toil at home; therefore, I must turn back". A third said, "I am dull and cannot learn. I beg thee have me excused!" Still another said, "I am going to be married, and therefore I need go no further".

So thus did the members of our court decrease until there were only twenty-one at the beginning of our second mile. We had now begun the big show of our journey under the name of Sophomores with Marietta Gates, President; Kilmer Cheek, Vice-President; and Millicent Beal, Secretary and Treasurer. In this exciting mile our members really became active. Some joined the basketball team; many were student librarians and lunchroom workers; others were members of the Student Council. Eight of us went through two of the most horrible days of all our journey—initiation into the Beta Club.

Nevertheless, in September of 1946 we began our third mile with more zeal and ambition to succeed. A new member, joining our court at this point, increasing our number to twenty-two. For our leaders we chose: Millicent Beal, President; Delores Gaines, Vice-President; and Margie Poe, Secretary and Treasurer. We realized that our journey was growing harder, yet more exciting. It was on this mile that we received our class rings. They came just before Christmas and seemed like a Christmas present, except they weren't free. A rather memorable event was the banquet we gave the class of '47. The Dutch theme was carried out in all our decoration plans, and with Millicent Beal as toastmistress, everyone seemed to enjoy the occasion.

Hurrah! Our last mile was reached! Realizing that we were nearing the land of Education, our excitement grew keener and we traveled under the name of Seniors with a new seriousness. Margie Poe became president of our court, while Ollie Seagroves became Vice President. Joy Ruth was our Secretary and Kilmer Cheek was our Treasurer. Our motto was "Not Sunset but Dawn," our colors were green and white, and our flower was the red rose.

During these four weary miles to the land of Education, several outstanding honors were bestowed upon the members of our court. Margie Poe won third place in the state in the National Forestry Contest. Ollie Seagroves won the local recitation medal. John Reynolds Harris and John Kilmer Cheek won the local declamation award. Marietta Gates was editor of our paper, and Delores Gaines was editor of the Goldstone.

Our members were officers of the Beta Club, the I-H Club and the Student Council, while others were bus drivers and lunchroom workers.

And so the history of our journey ends, our memories cease, and we look to the future with great expectations.

CLASS POEM

'Twas the night before Commencement Day
And hard as they would try,
Not one of our lively Senior Class
Could sleep or close an eye.

You may ask why all this wakefulness.
Imagine your elation
If you had worked hard and won the prize
Of "Queen of Education".

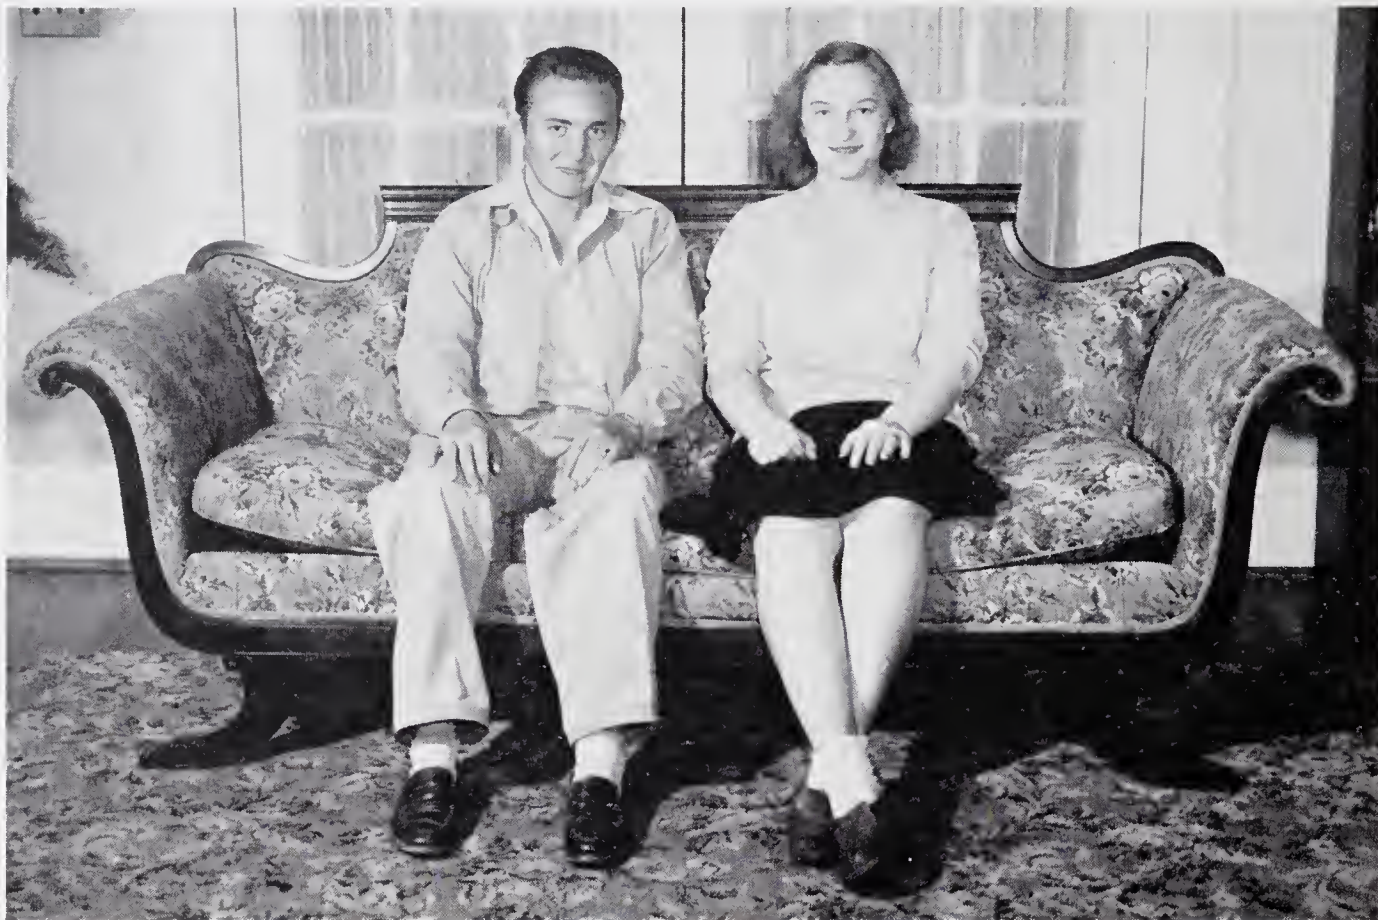

'Twas the day for the coronation.
Though they miss them we guess.
All the teachers were quite happy with
The Seniors' great success.

Though nonchalant they appeared to be,
Tears were not hard to find
When they had diplomas in their hands
And left classmates behind.

A merry class, a praise-worthy class
Look for a happy fate,
For there'll never be another like
The Class of Forty-Eight.

Prophecy

Last week I visited the West Coast and looked through the powerful telescope on Mount Palomar. I hoped to see Mars, or, at least, the tunnels in the moon, but I saw only the Royal Class of '48 in the year 1958. As I focused the telescope at various angles each member passed before my eyes.

In the city of Greensboro on South Elm Street, a beautiful night club was seen, and there, cracking her wit with Greensboro's business men, was Princess Mary Ruth Wilson, the successful owner of the club.

Asheville next came into view, and I beheld John Walter Memorial Hospital with Princess Inez Oldham, the efficient superintendent of nurses, ministering to the patients.

A limousine passed with His Excellency Governor Charlie Johnson and Chauffeur Prince Charlie Fields.

Adjusting my telescope, I saw Antioch, just outside Goldston, and there was Princess Betty Gaines, proprietor of Chatham's "Jot 'em Down Store."

Before I could turn around feathers filled the air, and, when the air was clear, I could see Prince John Walter Goldston as he and Princess Margie were putting 100,000 chickens to bed.

A beautiful office came into view, and I caught a glimpse of Princess Millicent Beal, secretary for the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C.

A skyscraper under construction was sighted and high up on the steel framework, I saw the contractor as he directed the men in their work. I could not at first make out who it was; but, presently, he turned his face and I recognized Prince John Kilmer Cheek.

As I turned my telescope, the University of Florida appeared; in the president's office, was the president of the university—Prince John Reynolds Harris.

An old-fashioned farm house came before my eyes, and a mother was sitting with three small children, saying their evening prayer, around her knees. I looked twice to be sure who the mother was. Ah, it was Princess Mariel Griffin!

A new Ford dashed by and at the wheel was Princess Joy Ruth on her way to Goldston to meet with the Four H Club, for she is now the assistant home agent of Chatham County.

A beautiful spring day appeared, and I was able to watch Prince J. L. Campbell, sitting lazily on the edge of a river bank, casting his line into the water, still waiting for suckers.

I looked at a small cottage, nestled in the mountains of North Carolina. A crippled soldier and his wife, who was his former nurse, Princess Ollie Seagrove resided here.

Next, Gulf came into view and there sat Prince John Wilkie Jr. in "That Easy Rocking Chair."

I couldn't believe it when Princess Delores Gaines appeared as a society belle; she is now married to the congressman from this district.

A greyhound bus dashed by loaded with passengers; Prince Theron Oldham was the driver.

The queen of education, Princess Marietta Gates, still using her brain, came into view—she is head of the department of accounting in the University of North Carolina.

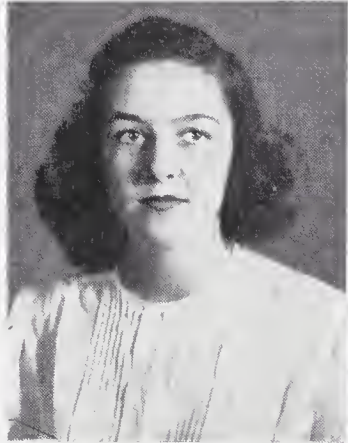

Oh, it can't be true, but I saw it! I am an old maid with nothing to do but think of all the chances I turned down!
